OKTATÁS CÉLJA / AIM OF THE COURSE

Business Studies Syllabus

Course description:

Business Studies syllabus contains key economic, management, marketing, financial and other business concepts. The course places greater emphasis on explaining and analysing what the students know than on just recalling facts and figures. Popular headings in this course include:

- Knowledge: the student's ability to recall specific terms, techniques, principles and facts,

- Comprehension: understanding which the students demonstrate by selecting and interpreting information (in both written and graphical forms),

- Application: the students use their knowledge (of terms, techniques, etc.) to explain unfamiliar business matters and situations,

- Analysis and synthesis: the students` ability to distinguish between fact and opinion, to make generalisations, to reorganise information and to test hypotheses,

- Evaluation: demonstrating reasoned judgement and reaching suitable conclusions.

Course objectives:

There are three particularly important skill areas in Business Studies:

- Communication: tests and examinations in all subjects at this level expect the students to demonstrate a good standard of communication,

- Numeracy: (perform simple and complex calculations normally with the aid of a calculator, present and label tables and diagrams appropriately,

- Data handling: Business Studies tests and examinations ask the students to handle data. Questions require students to relate general theory and textbook points to the particular situation – the „data” – in the question.

The course aims at strengthening students` skills in these areas.
