OKTATÁS CÉLJA / AIM OF THE COURSE

The role of the subject in the programme's objective:

The subject serves to establish two themes - soft skills and management knowledge. Hard skills are related to the profession, while soft skills are related to human relationships and concept building, so they are closely related to managerial / managerial skills.

During the course, students will acquire the basic knowledge necessary to understand these topics. Due to the nature of continuous accountability, the course aims to develop and improve the students' own skills through practical examples, case studies, self-assessment tests, group work.

Professional background and justification of the subject:

The necessity and importance of the continuous development of skills ("hard and soft" skills) is becoming increasingly evident in our age. The necessity and importance of the continuous development of skills ("hard and soft" skills) become increasingly evident in our age. The topic and its complexity became to the focus of interest in management science from the 1980s and 1990s. The results of their international and national surveys can contribute to more efficient management. Mobility caused by the globalization has increased the role of the human factor in competitiveness. The rapid change in knowledge increasingly requires the development of skills.
