OKTATÁS CÉLJA / AIM OF THE COURSE

In the 21st century, both the economy and society have become networked, which affects the functions and structures of the state. Therefore, the course deals with effective functioning of the state, i.e. the quality of government, embedding it in the modern principles of state organisation. It introduces students into the successive paradigms of public administration emphasising cooperation and collaboration between various sectors, and their actors. Students get to know the concept of 'governance' and 'multi-level governance and its practical application, which expresses non-hierarchical management. The other focus will be on integrated development approach through which the subject provides an international perspective and a regional and cohesion political contexts for the topic.
